EQF is currently available in Thailand and Taiwan (haven't released the app for India and South Korea). We have a huge list of countries waiting for a release in the near future. The bulk of development has been focused on the main localization for the game, so we can't promise it will work everywhere; but in countries where it does, we're going to do our best to support you as well. We're focused on releasing it for international players first. Feel free to contact us if you can't play the game and we can either sort out a fix, or you can try to figure out how to translate your own language. If we can do something to help with the development of the EU localization, we'll definitely do that.

PALINGPOINT [official site] is, as is its own press release, coming to PS Vita and PS4 sometime in 2015. Because the game is made by the same people who brought 2012's RUSE and 2013's Ascension of the Golem, I'm thinking it'll be rather good. The new fantasy adventure game stars protagonist Kai, a resident of the Lands Between who will rise, tarnished or not, and brandish the power of the Elden Ring Cracked Version. Some galleons are on their way with that old cargo of Elden Rings, and Kai is going to board them and retrieve it for his friends (though it's unclear whether or not that involves first doing a good thing for a small boy in need). Playable online, Kai must save a kidnapped boy, solve arcane mysteries, fight monsters and an armada of "evil savages," and plot his revenge against the captain who has ordered the boy's murder. [Hot Chip Games] Here's some concept art: It's not clear what platforms the game will be available on or when, but you can watch the entire PALINGPOINT webseries for free on YouTube. When I was little I used to say that I'd one day make a game like Secret of Evermore for the ZX Spectrum, because I was a weird kid and thought doing that was a normal thing. Then I made Tomb Raider for the ZX Spectrum. Then I moved on to other, more commercially successful games like Beyond Good & Evil. Tarnished has pulled me back to that dream, because today the ZX Spectrum is the most beautiful system ever created, and I miss it dearly. I'd better make the best games possible as a direct result, then, because when I'm not making games I'm obsessively watching the news about games, in the very relevant hope of finding something new to make. And when that happens, the game will be made. • Tarnished is out on PC and Mac on May 18 • PALINGPOINT is coming to PS4 and Vita sometime in 2015 • Follow us on Twitter @tarnishedgame • Follow us on Facebook for more Pocket Gamer: Tarnished is a fantasy RPG where you literally play the role of a treasure-hunter in a fantasy setting. You must examine, trade, fight, and even talk to people to accomplish your goals. The goal is to survive, find the stuff bff6bb2d33

i miss thompson. did tatum ever start as a starter? i don't remember seeing a post game interview where thompson played more than 1 1/2 quarters due to floyd's injury. from what i read he was bad behind woodson. give tatum a chance. he may be better suited behind wheeler or woodson. If you feel that strongly about it you'd have to say to not touch him with a 20-foot pole, but he is now more of a veteran with regular playing time and some success. I think he's much more of a natural to the role than any of us realize and I think there is a chance he improves to the point where he's a top-tier backup. I absolutely agree 100% with this. I think he's pretty damn good. He's a pretty high IQ player. He's been getting at least 25 minutes a game for the last 4-5 games and has been really impressive. I can't believe how people are blowing him up as something special, but he's pretty short and has to stop doing something with his left hand to actually do anything. That's my opinion. Both of them are good cause, but i don't think tatum is better than thompson, not even close. He is only a few
