"GREAT GAME" "Highly Recommended" "A MUST BUY. Great game!" "Great graphics!" "One of the best RPG games I ever played." "Interesting storyline." "GREAT GAME" "A MUST BUY. Great game!" "GREAT GAME!" "This is a MUST BUY game! The world is amazing and the action/game play is fantastic. The character building aspect is very enjoyable. The storyline is deep and very well written. My only complaint is that there is no trial version available yet as well as only having a limited number of servers available. I suggest that the developers allow everyone to play this game right away and include a trial version. If you are a fan of fantasy, RPGs, action, role-playing, or any RPG action game, then this is a MUST BUY! I have not been this excited about an RPG since the 1980s. This is a GOLD medal game!" "THE BEST RPG I'VE EVER PLAYED!!" "Wonderful. This game is great." "MUST BUY! I could not put it down. I just keep playing it again and again." "A TRUE RARE TREASURE!" "This is an exceptional game! The gameplay is unique and addictive, the story is captivating, and the graphics are excellent. Even if you've never played an RPG before, you'll find something great to do in this game." "8 OUT OF 10" "S.I.C..S.A.G.E.L.L… what is that? DUDES… The story line moves at an incredible pace, keeping you on your toes and on the edge of your seat. Take a seat, and never put down your controller. Absolutely FANTASTIC!" "6 OUT OF 10" "GREAT GAME" "Love this game but I have to say that there is absolutely no story in the game!" "HARD TO FIND" "Fantastic… The text and graphics bff6bb2d33

Q: Typeorify all objects to a common type I have objects of type A, B, C and want to type-orify all these objects into an object of type D. The objects A,B,C are always known but some of the objects are not (may,e., D). Now my naive idea was: function typeOrify(input): D { const types: D[] = []; for (const a in input) { if (a in types) { continue; } types.push(Object.isFinder ? new FindersSortedLikeObject(input[a], a) : new FindersLikeObject(input[a], a)); } return new TypeOrifyObject(types); } function new FindersSortedLikeObject(input, a): FindersSortedLikeObject { return new FindersSortedLikeObject(input); } My solution is verbose and do not scales well when there are many different types (A, B, C) I could use of: Is there an other possibility to type-orify, i.e. without to add the typedef to the objects? Is there a function TypeOrifyJson or TypeOrifyJsonRegEx similar to the jsonify (here) or itoa (here) function but automatic for the given types? Ps.: Let me know if there is a better title for the question. I couldn't find something better and my english is not good enough to search for something better. A: Is there a function TypeOrifyJson or TypeOrifyJsonRegEx similar to the jsonify (here) or itoa (here) function but automatic for the given types? This is exactly the purpose of TypeScript's type-level string extraction, and will be available in the next release of TypeScript. // All of these types will be of type "FindersLikeObject" type DUnion = "a" | "b" | "c"; type D | JsonType = string; //> "a" |
