This is something that HeartSavers International is passionate about. Without a doubt, an important element in the battle against heart disease is the consumption of heart healthy foods. We've compiled a list of the top heart healthy foods that help prevent and treat cardiovascular health problems. Most research shows that eating heart healthy foods can help a number of preventing disease. It's also shown to help in the treatment of existing diseases. Eating foods rich in antioxidants help the blood vessels to relax, especially as we age. Antioxidants help prevent artery building plaque. One of the best sweet tasting food are berries. While you can find these fruits in supermarkets, you will save by growing your own. Strawberries are a good one to start. If you grow your own, you can measure the size and the sweetness of your strawberries by growing them before they mature. While most of the world is familiar with cranberries and blueberries, go berries have recently become an important addition to the foods we eat. These berries contain powerful antioxidants called polyphenols. Studies show that these berries help to protect the blood vessels from the buildup of plaque and other damage. Artichokes are another nutrient rich fruit with a lot of health benefits. Research shows that these fruits help protect the blood vessels by fighting the buildup of plaque, preventing free radicals to form and maintaining overall good health. Artichokes are also good for the liver and they help prevent gallstones. Furthermore, artichokes are relatively low in calories and they provide fiber.
