The primary focus of this game is Free-Flow Combat and in-game flow animations. This means that a lot of the game has a custom chip that governs the flow of combat, with its own hooks for animation. You'll learn that as you progress through the game. R.E.A.C.H. is a satirical look at what it means to be human - the story pits our AI protagonist against the wall as they adapt to a physical body and explore life on earth. This game uses a custom pixel-art engine called "pixelJuice" - an all-in-one pixel and sprite-art engine. REPLACED is a side project I have been working on since 2009, which started life as a small one man side project, which in to time grew to a team of 20. I am a developer who has worked in the games industry for 15 years and currently, at the age of 39, own and run my own company. I was raised in Northamptonshire, England. REPLACED is a side project funded by Kickstarter. What is REPLACED? A 2.5D sci-fi retro-futuristic action platformer set in an alternate 1980s America, with free-flow action combat and a deep, dystopian story. You play as R.E.A.C.H. - an artificial intelligence trapped in a human body against its own will, striving to adjust to human life, in and around Phoenix-City. Outlaws are rife in a society that has sustained lasting damage and taken a turn for the worse, following a catastrophic nuclear event. Everything is ruled by corruption and greed and the ones in power see humans and their organs as nothing more than currency. REPLACED focuses on a single player experience, with a mix of cinematic platforming, pixel art and free-flow action combat. Set in a complex gritty stylized cyberpunk inspired world combined with deep engaging dystopian story set in an alternative past. Explore and uncover its mysteries as R.E.A.C.H. who is beginning to understand that everything comes at a price. Hello, juste because of an ope issue, the server could not be played since a few days. Today, it has been fixed. I have heard of a problem, which is more important is that the game, currently, does not accept the client, and thus you could not join the server. It should be fixed as soon as possible. Do you know if the issue has been resolved? My friend has had the same problem as me, he has no password, and this is really complicated if you ask me. What's new:

is still climbing. You may have heard of the game, it's a grand WW2 strategy sim where you build your country and attempt to win the war. There has been quite a bit of controversy surrounding the game, with a massive ongoing Second World War design flaw that just won't go away. There are a lot of people who have played the game and loved it, and people who don't really care for it and in a lot of ways this forum's player base represents those two extremes. Most of us who have played the game are familiar with the "ranked" feature where you can play the game to ascend through "ranks" from player to player, and while the rank system isn't perfect I consider it one of the most important systems in the game; I can even understand someone who dislikes the system. But some of the other complaints people have with Hearts of Iron IV are far less trivial, and are in my opinion detrimental to the game. Less Concerns Ribbons One issue that is often talked about is the "ribbons", which are displayed on maps in the simulation and also appear in the Information Pages you see when you right click on an enemy unit. The most concerning issue with these is that when you see an enemy unit with a ribbon, it indicates that the enemy unit was attacked by a previous faction, most probably by you, and that the unit lost. Hearts of Iron IV has a setting that allows you to turn off the show of ribbon colors, but I would advice everyone to turn it on and always watch out for ribbons because they are a sure sign that you have been accused of attacking an enemy unit that was defeated previously. If you see them, don't hesitate to count on the unit removing the ribbon after the AI clears the attack, because there is no way to keep the unit ribbonless. Curing Ribbons Curing ribbons are fairly straightforward. If you were at war and you got attacked, you know you were attacked. If you were on truce with an enemy you don't want to attack them again for any reason, even if you have another war declared. If you are on truce, you are essentially neutral, and if someone attacks you, your own allies would get the blame (if your allies attempt to attack the accused country you are at war with, it would be your allies attacking them, and thus they would have to be removed as well). The way to cure ribbons when at war is to issue a
