1. Game Files - Put the game in a folder somewhere on your hard disk. - On your hard disk, create a folder where you will keep the game (eg: C:\My Games\Bitflip). - Rename the game folder from 'BtC.exe' to something like 'Bitflip' (for example: 'Bitflip.exe'). - Close all your programs. - Start the program Bitflip. - To start the game, drag and drop the game folder into the game. We recommend using TheFull version for Windows, because of the No key button problems.
2. Optional Files - After you have created a new folder on your hard disk, - Open the game folder (Bitflip) and copy its contents to the new folder (eg: Bitflip_content). - Open the games folder (BtC) on your hard disk, and make sure the new folder in which you've copied the files from the game folder (Bitflip_content) is also in this folder. - Rename the folder (BtC) to something like (Bitflip). - Close the program Bitflip, and start it again.
3. May Take Some Time, Depending on Your Computer - When Bitflip starts, it will open the game and show you a tutorial. - Then Bitflip will ask you if you want to create a new folder (Bitflip). - Select yes and wait for the file-system to check for errors. And finally, enjoy.
4. "ERROR" - If you get an error message in Bitflip, such as "Error: Unable to open data folder "BtC"...", this is a common error message. It does not mean that the game is broken. Instead, Bitflip will ask you if you want to continue anyway. If you select 'Yes', the game will continue to start, but we strongly recommend not to continue, because the data folder is completely messed up. - We're working hard on a solution for this bug. If you want to keep an eye on it, please follow our website (bitflipclock.com) or write us in the forum of the Bitflip Forum (bitflipclock.com/forum). NB: Games can still be found in the game folders even

(PBR Street Fighter)* Even now, the courtyard of the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Santa Monica, California is filled with Japanese motorcycle fans wearing the signature visor-like helmet of PBR Street Fighter -- Japan's answer to Xbox Live Arcade's Motocross Madness and European PS3 and 360's Trials HD. Just for street riding, a few diehards spray the yellow-bubbled riding jackets of PBR with dirt and water -- they're not for the show, a few lack the one accessory PBR fans are likely to see on Harley Davidson weekend warriors all over the US - a Harley Davidson tee-shirt. Only one style of PBR gets slapped on by die-hard motorcycle-enthusiast fans like this -- it's the boxer in purple and white you see on the cover of issue #1 of the Official PBR Calendar featuring track rat and series great Dougald MacDonald. Against a black motorcycle background, the National Powder Puff League's fresh-faced, smiling face stares shyly to the side, his lips sealed tight. If this isn't the face of the sport, then PBR must be in trouble. No matter how hard the National Championship looks like a waste of time, the calendar is all it's cracked up to be - no, I've never been to track, yet I own every cover, and believe me, that's some serious collecting. A fat stack of the Original Calendar hits a motorcycle rider who asked not to be identified. "It's like running into Herbie Hancock," he said. "Even if this isn't going to sell a lot of copies, I still want this thing, I already have a couple. I'm a fan." The man was fascinated, even without personal knowledge of the colorful races PBR has competed in, because it captures the attitude and spirit of the new breed of motorsports fan. Each cover was meticulously designed, the calendars were printed and the Flyers labored over the covers of each calendar before each model was delivered to the package shippers. "We saw PBR as a sport, not a band or the national anthem to a religion. Even the box covers say it all: 'PBR's Official Calendar. It's Interesting.' Everyone wants to know what is going on behind those calendars." He catches the vision behind the meticulous, simple design, "We have all these famous and talented riders, but they're all anonymous. We designed the National Championship to remove the image of PBR as remote
