Aspirin hydrochloride (also referred to as acetylsalicylic acid, ASA, Asapain, or acetylsalic acid) is a medicine (drug) used to prevent and relieve pain and reduce fever.

Definition of the word SCHEIDL (vinyl). Realistic vinyl letters in both Vintage and Modern style from the German word for "cheese" (Schichl) and is also a popular calligraphy style.

Definition of SCHNEIDER (vinyl).

This is a German word for a pencil maker. SCHNEIDWAGON (vinyl). A German word for a motorcycle. It is commonly used for motorcycles and aircraft. The technology advances in three-dimensional (3D) modeling and computer graphics of objects has resulted in rapid growth of a real-time imaging technology called stereo imaging and a technology called multi-vision which includes two-dimensional television, a three-dimensional television, a video image, a dynamic-image, and a three-dimensional (3D) animation. A multi-vision viewer provides stereoscopic viewing of a 3D (3-dimensional) scene such as a 3D image by, for example, allowing a viewer to wear a special set of lenses. This is an advantage since a stereoscopic image can be seen without 3D glasses. However, multi-vision viewing consumes a relatively high amount of power. In an effort to overcome the above-mentioned problem, a 3D-display device is disclosed. The 3D-display device is capable of displaying a multi-vision image that includes a stereoscopic image and a lenticular-type multi-vision image. The 3D-display device includes a projector and a screen. The projector projects, for example, 3D-numerical-control (N-C) codes. A television receiver receives and displays the 3D-N-C codes in the form of a multi-vision image, which includes a stereoscopic image and a lenticular-type multi-vision image. In some embodiments of the 3D-display device, the 3D-N-C codes are realized as a stereoscopic 3D image including a left-eye image, a right-eye image, and a center image. The center image is a transparent image at the center of the stereo 3D image. The 3D-display device captures the left-eye and right-eye images and the center image in real time. The captured images are
