Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 2001-211557 (hereinafter, Patent Document 1) discloses a technique of connecting conductive layers to each other through a contact hole by setting the inner wall of the contact hole in a plasma SiGe polycrystal layer to function as an upper electrode as a conductive layer. Related Articles Human rights activists have called for a thorough inquiry into the arrest of a prominent Kurdish activist in Romania, accusing the country's judiciary of failing to provide a fair trial. Mehmet Hakan Tok went into custody on May 31 after being arrested, his lawyer Omer Kucuk told AFP, and has not been permitted to contact his family. His lawyer said Tok, who holds Turkish citizenship, was charged with links to a Kurdish separatist group, the Kurdistan Communities Union (KCK), along with two other suspects. Human rights groups warn of a possible "witchhunt" by the Romanian authorities against supporters of the pro-Kurdish Peace and Democracy Party (BDP), even as BDP's representatives complain that Tok's trial is unfair. BDP spokeswoman Pervin Buldan told AFP that "a series of illegal arrests had been carried out in Romania in recent days c6a93da74d
