In my code, I have a line which looks like following: list.add(new Object[] { "some value"}); At some point, I changed this to following: list.add("some value"); There are various other methods in the code as well which looks like similar to the first one. I want to replace all such method body from that line to another method body using eclipse. How can I do this? Thanks A: First open the declaration from (ctrl+1) then open the "javadoc" from (ctrl+2) then right click on the line and choose replace with which shows us the following dialog: That's all. A: In the 'Java Editing' section of Eclipse's 'Preferences' dialog, there is a search feature that allows you to search for selected text. If you type in 'add' and enter, you should find the 'add' method in your class. From there, you can either select all instances and run the 'Replace with' option (Java menu -> Run 'Replace with', then select the appropriate target class, then a method name. That's the hard way. The other way is to use the 'Search & Replace' plugin which allows you to perform this type of search & replace globally (or for the selected project) in a much easier fashion. * x + 2 9 , - 3 * j + 4 * j + 2 3 = 3 * x f o r j . -
