Veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) or other disabilities are less likely to seek mental health treatment. The knowledge of existing rehabilitation services is important for identifying targets for future care. The purpose of this study was to identify the views of disabled veterans about the rehabilitation services available in New Zealand. A qualitative approach was used. A total of 19 in-depth interviews were conducted with veterans. Data was analysed using framework analysis. The three most common rehabilitation services reported by participants were: Help with finding employment, help with getting a disability grant, and getting access to

However, if I run pip install numpy, it installs a newer version of numpy (1.7.1). This older version of numpy does not seem to work with Python 2.7. I've tried using easy_install and in the end I had to install numpy from source. However, when I install numpy from source, it installs a newer version of numpy (1.9.0). This version of numpy does not seem to work with Python 2.7. How do I solve this? I've tried upgrading my version of python, but it didn't help. I'm running the following versions of Python: 2.7.3 3.2.3 3.3.3 3.3.5 A: I just tried running easy_install for numpy 1.7.1 from source, and it seemed to work fine for me, including the easy_install command working as expected. For example, I was able to run [me@notebook numpy]$ easy_install --upgrade numpy Searching for numpy Reading f988f36e3a
