What people say about you is even more valuable than what you say about yourself. - Robert G. Louis Everyone's a self-publisher nowadays. In fact, you're a self-publisher whether you like it or not. And as a self-publisher, you have to market yourself like no other. You've probably heard a million times that you need to be "humble" and be "real" with your potential readers. And you're probably right - because the only way to stand out in the crowd is to be different. That said, you still need to know how to market yourself. Because you're a self-publisher, it's the only way you can become the best writer you can be. The authors at Writer's Market put out some tips for how to market yourself as a self-publisher. From catchy book titles to novel cover art, you need to get creative with your own book marketing. Be yourself No one wants to read a book written in someone else's voice. Whether it's a memoir or a novel, people will tell you that a story is only interesting if it's told by the writer. You need to let the people know that you're the writer.
