Text Files What is a text file? A text file is a binary file that contains information in the form of characters. It is a sequential file with a header and a record of data. The data is then encrypted and compressed in a way that is both human and machine readable. The header contains information about how the data will be formatted. These headers are hidden from view and are not included in the file. ... Are there text files in Crystal? Text files in Crystal are called text containers. A text container is a machine that can hold a text file, with the machine containing a certain number of logical records. Each logical record is an instance of a text container and not an individual character. Each logical record is fixed length (255 bytes) and contains a header and a record of data. The header contains information about how the data will be formatted. These headers are hidden from view and are not included in the file. ...
