The purpose of this study was to investigate the relationship between post-infectious Lyme disease and animal behaviours. Experiments were conducted with male Long-Evans rats and MRL mice infected with Borrelia burgdorferi. Behaviour was measured using a standard protocol, which examines eight types of aggressive and defensive behaviours for 3 h during the light and dark cycles at multiple time points for 4 weeks after infection. During the first 2 weeks post-infection, rats increased the number and duration of attack bites. No consistent changes were seen in any of the other behaviours, including the majority of aggressive/defensive behaviours in mice. During the third and fourth weeks, both rats and mice demonstrated an increase in the intensity of biting and scratching, and a decrease in the frequency of aggressive/defensive behaviours. The results support the theory that Lyme disease can negatively impact the behaviour of animals and post-infectious mood disturbances can occur if treatment is delayed.Q: Inveighing against a group of exchange rates: term for this in economics? Among the Yaqui were also a few Mescalero Pueblo, and, in the early 20th century, Apache and Navajo also lived there. The Yaqui, historically, have been the only group to have inhabited this area and the southern part of what is now northern Sonora and southern Chihuahua. The Yaqui had a larger influence on the neighboring New Mexico and northern Arizona cultures, as well as in these areas into the 1880s and 1890s, until they were forced out of their traditional homelands by a series of forces, including the construction of the Santa Fe Railway. The Pima also trace their ancestry to the region. Calculate the total price of a trip to Cuba. Use our cost f988f36e3a
